Extreme Makeover: Library Edition

Ok, maybe not extreme, but this summer will be a busy one for improvements in the Library. Among the big changes you'll see when you return this fall are the removal of the glass paneled wall in the lobby, the construction of a cafe and a west entrance, and the renovation of the southeast corner of the first floor for the Museum. In addition the Government Documents Collection will move to the first floor, which will open more space for seating on the second floor.

Art in the Rod

This summer Rod Library will begin construction on the new West Entrance and cafe. Because construction means dust, we will be storing the art on the main floor in order to prevent particulates from damaging the pieces. Once the dust has settled, we will refresh the area with art exhibits using pieces from the Rod Library Art Collection, the UNI Permanent Art Collection, and the Art and Architecture Collection. We also hope to bring in exhibits of student and faculty work on a rotating basis to provide you, our patrons, with increased access to the arts. In addition to the visual arts, we hope to bring the performing arts into the library, as well. Look for announcements of events in the coming months. In the mean time, please enjoy the visual art exhibits on the 1st, 3rd, and 4th floors.
