American Way of Eating

Come see the new exhibit on the 2013/14 Common Read book, American Way of Eating, by Tracie McMillan. The book selection reflects this year's Reaching for Higher Ground theme: Food Matters. The display is located outside the Collection Management Office on the west side of the main floor.

CETL and LAC

We have new upstairs partners! The Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning and the Liberal Arts Core has joined the Rod on the 3rd floor. The CETL seeks to explore, enhance, and engage in the practice of teaching and the culture of learning at UNI. The purpose of the Liberal Arts Core (LAC) is to actively engage students to become self-aware participants in their own personal development through thoughtful and informed decision-making, promotion of life-long learning, enlarging the scope of their world to global issues and diverse cultures, and increasing their strategies for solving complex problems they will encounter in the future.

Print Release

If you have visited the 2nd (main) floor of the Rod lately and sent a print job to the "2 Learning Commons" printer you will notice something new. In order to release your print job you will need to login with your Cat ID to the print release station located next to the printer. Logging in will let you view your print queue and select only the jobs you wish to release. The print release station will not only help us reduce waste, it will also allow us to enable "Mobile Print" which will provide printing from personal mobile devices.

Comic Con

The Rod will be hosting a Mini Comic Con on March 29th, 2014. There will be several activities starting in January leading up to the actual event. Stay tuned to the Rod Library homepage, our Facebook page and our Twitter account for updates!

Coffee and Tea

Try the newest selection of coffee and tea available here at the Rod Library. Extra bold Double Black Diamond and the medium roast Colombian Fair Trade Select are now available for purchase from the MultiService Center, main floor of the library. In addition, we now have Green Tea and Earl Grey Tea. Come and enjoy these new flavors!
